Annual Scientific Meeting in Anaesthesiology 2015 - SimBattle

Simulation has been widely used in various industries, and healthcare is of no exception. The Hong Kong College of Anaesthesiologists has been running various courses using simulation to practise the effective management of anaesthetic crisis and to help for team building and crisis resource management. Simulation training offers a safe environment for our anaesthetic trainees to better equip their skills in order to tackle difficult challenges in their daily practice.

This year, we have successfully introduced the 'SimBattle' in the Annual Scientific Conference 2015 and received overwhelming positive feedback. What is "SimBattle" or "SimWar"? It is a simulation exercise that involving teams to demonstrate their communication, teamwork, clinical management, and problem solving skills. Upon completion of the simulated scenario, judges assess and discuss participants' clinical actions and team dynamics. "SimWar" has become very popular and it has been staged at national meetings such as the annual International Meeting on Simulation in Healthcare (IMSH), the Society for Academic Emergency Medicine (SAEM), and the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP).

Once again, congratulation to our winning teams! The judges' and the audience prize for the Best Team go to the Kowloon Central Cluster. The Judges' prize for the Best Doctor is Dr. Adeline Man from New Territories West Cluster and the Judges' prize for the Best Nurse is Mr. Jonathan Chuen from New Territories East Cluster. This event would not have been so successful without the support from the Hong Kong College of Anaesthesiologists and the ASM 2015 Organizing Committee. My heartfelt gratitude to all of you who have come and support this event.

Dr Gladys Kwan

"SimBattle" Coordinator, ASM 2015

Judges' and Audience Prizes for the Best Team: Kowloon Central Cluster

Judges' Prize for the Best Doctor: Dr. Adeline Man

Formal Project Prize

The winner of the 2015 Formal Project Prize went to Dr. Dr. CHUNG Pui-Wah Febbie for her project entitled 'A Comparison of Ability between Junior and Senior Anaesthetists in Relating Pulse Oximeter Tones to Oxygen Saturations – Does it Improve with Years of Clinical Experience?'

Advanced & Difficult Airway Management for Anaesthetists (ADAM-A) and NTEC Simulation and Training Centre

The target participants for ADAM-A are anaesthetists in training and also suitable for doctors (non-anaesthetists) who are interested in more advanced airway management such as FOB skills, lung isolation skills, paediatric airway skills. We use simulation to provide different airway crisis so that the doctors can practice how to manage in a patient-safe environment. Also, we have lots of hands-on practice on different airway techniques and equipment, under the guidance of airway specialists. Instead of lecture, we shall have case discussion sessions to discuss how we manage the airway in various challenging conditions. Please click here for details of the ADAM-A

Regarding the other courses organized at the NTEC Simulation and Training Centre, please click here for details.
